If your Lead-Based Paint Certification is due to expire, you'll need this 4-hour REFRESHER course to keep your credential active!

Multifamily NW Partnering with Amec Foster Wheeler

The Lead RRP certification specifically applies to those firms or organizations conducting renovation and maintenance activities in pre-1978 homes, child care facilities, elementary schools, and some common areas of public and commercial buildings, such as restrooms and cafeterias. A renovator must complete an EPA-approved training course, and a firm must apply to the EPA to become certified. Initial training is eight hours in duration and includes hands-on exercises. This class is the follow up refresher 4-hour training and is required once within each five year re-certification cycle.

NOTE: If your original certification has expired, EPA requires that you retake the Lead-Based Renovator Certification 8-hour class. Multifamily NW offers the 4-hour and the 8-hour classes throughout the year. All attendees must bring their EPA Lead-Based Paint 8-hour Certificate, with photo, to class.

Note: this class is not the certification.
